#2 - Sylvia Trench

|               |                      |
|---------------|----------------------|
| Actrice       | Eunice Gayson |
| Nationaliteit | English              |
| Film          | Dr. No        |
| Jaar          | 1962                 |

|     |  |
|-----|--|
| Rol | Sylvia Trench introduced herself in the opening scene of Dr. No as "Trench. Sylvia Trench", which Bond then mimicked with his now trademark "Bond. James Bond". Trench was Bond's girlfriend for the first two films, with a running joke that Bond was called away on a mission just as things were heating up. |

| Film          | Dr. No        |
| Jaar          | 1962                 |

|     |   |
|-----|---|
| Rol | Miss Taro was a spy working for the villainous Dr. No. She got herself a job at government house in Kingston, Jamaica, so that she could steal secret files detailing Dr. No and Crab Key Island. She invited Bond to her house for dinner, where she laid a trap for his assassination. However, Bond smelled something was fishy and got his men to arrest Miss Taro so he could lay a trap for the assassin. |

#4 - Tatiana Romanova

|               |                              |
|---------------|------------------------------|
| Actrice       | Daniela Bianchi       |
| Nationaliteit | Italian                      |
| Film          | From Russia With Love |
| Jaar          | 1963                         |

Rol

Tatiana Romanova worked for the Soviet Embassy in Istanbul, and was coerced by the deadly Rosa Klebb into a mission to seduce James Bond and (unknowingly) lead him to his death. She helped Bond steal a Lektor decoding machine, and the pair escaped on the Orient Express train. After a failed assassination attempt by henchman Red Grant, Klebb tried to personally kill Bond, but Tatiana's loyalty to Bond won out.

#5 - Zora

|               |                              |
|---------------|------------------------------|
| Actrice       | Martine Beswick       |
| Nationaliteit | English                      |
| Film          | From Russia With Love |
| Jaar          | 1963                         |

Rol

Head of Station in Istanbul, Kerim Bey, took Bond to a gypsy camp, where the two girls Vida and Zora were to fight to the death over a man. Zora was played by Martine Beswick, who would return 3 years later to play another Bond girl in Thunderball.

#6 - Vida

|               |                              |
|---------------|------------------------------|
| Actrice       | Aliza Gur             |
| Nationaliteit | Israeli                      |
| Film          | From Russia With Love |
| Jaar          | 1963                         |

Rol

Vida and Zora engaged in an intense cat fight, scratching, fighting and trying to strangle each other. The fight was broken up when an assassin attacked the camp to try and kill Kerim Bey. Bond saved the life of the camp's leader in the process, who in turn honoured Bond's request to end the fighting. Happy to have their leader alive, Vida and Zora warmed to Bond, who got to entertain them for the evening.

#7 - Pussy Galore

|               |                       |
|---------------|-----------------------|
| Actrice       | Honor Blackman |
| Nationaliteit | English               |
| Film          | Goldfinger     |
| Jaar          | 1964                  |

Rol

The evocatively named Pussy Galore was an original Ian Fleming character from the novel. Ms. Galore ran a flying circus of female pilots, who were hired by Auric Goldfinger to fly over Fort Knox and gas the soldiers, so that Goldfinger could break in to the gold vault.

#8 - Jill Masterson

|               |                      |
|---------------|----------------------|
| Actrice       | Shirley Eaton |
| Nationaliteit | English              |
| Film          | Goldfinger    |
| Jaar          | 1964                 |

Rol

Jill Masterson was the scantily dressed girl who used binoculars and an ear piece to help Auric Goldfinger cheat at cards. Bond caught her at the game, and together they blackmailed Goldfinger into losing his money. After enjoying a few bottles of Dom Perignon with Bond, Masterson was killed by Goldfinger's henchman Oddjob, in revenge for her betrayal. Bond awoke to find her covered from head to toe in gold paint.

#9 - Tilly Masterson

|               |                     |
|---------------|---------------------|
| Actrice       | Tania Mallet |
| Nationaliteit | English             |
| Film          | Goldfinger   |
| Jaar          | 1964                |

Rol

Tilly Masterson tried to assassinate Auric Goldfinger in revenge for the death of her sister Jill. With her poor marksmanship, she missed and almost shot Bond, who took a sharp interest in her. Bond caught up with Tilly again and foiled another of her attempts to kill Goldfinger. In the process, the two were chased by Goldfinger's hitmen, and Tilly was killed by Oddjob's steel rimmed hat.

#10 - Bonita

|               |                    |
|---------------|--------------------|
| Actrice       | Nadja Regin |
| Nationaliteit | Serbian            |
| Film          | Goldfinger  |
| Jaar          | 1964               |

Rol

In the exciting pre-title sequence of Goldfinger, Bond foils the plots of a heroin baron and blows up his operations with plastic explosives. Before leaving, Bond takes care of some unfinished business, to have a bath with Bonita. The excursion turns out to be a trap, as Bonita seduces Bond so that a henchman can knock him unconscious. Bond sees the reflection in Bonita's eyes, and she gets knocked on the head while the henchman is electrocuted in the bath. "Shocking. Positively shocking" Bond remarks before leaving the room.

#11 - Dink

|               |                       |
|---------------|-----------------------|
| Actrice       | Margaret Nolan |
| Nationaliteit | English               |
| Film          | Goldfinger     |
| Jaar          | 1964                  |

Rol

Margaret Nolan played the Golden Girl in the title sequence and the pre-release advertising for Goldfinger. However, the producers eventually choose Shirley Eaton to play Jill Masterson, and Nolan was given the much smaller role of the pool-side masseuse Dink. Dink is shown massaging Bond, but has to leave when Felix Leiter arrives for some "man's talk."

#12 - Domino Derval

|               |                       |
|---------------|-----------------------|
| Actrice       | Claudine Auger |
| Nationaliteit | French                |
| Film          | Thunderball    |
| Jaar          | 1965                  |

Rol

Domino Derval was the mistress of SPECTRE agent Emilio Largo. Bond discovers that Largo had killed Domino's brother, and thinks he can use that fact to get her on his side. They meet underwater as Bond untraps Domino's flipper from the coral, and Bond manages to convince her to plot against Largo.

#13 - Paula Caplan

|               |                        |
|---------------|------------------------|
| Actrice       | Martine Beswick |
| Nationaliteit |                        |
| Film          | Thunderball     |
| Jaar          | 1965                   |

Rol

Paula Caplan was Bond's liaison in Nassau. She was played by Martine Beswick, who had previously played Bond girl Zora in From Russia With Love. Paula helped Bond to make contact with Domino Derval, but met her end after being captured by SPECTRE agents, taking a cyanide pill to avoid torture.

#14 - Fiona Volpe

|               |                        |
|---------------|------------------------|
| Actrice       | Luciana Paluzzi |
| Nationaliteit | Italian                |
| Film          | Thunderball     |
| Jaar          | 1965                   |

Rol

Fiona Volpe was the archtypical Bond henchwoman, with the task of seducing men into traps. She was feisty and more competent than many of the henchmen in the Bond films. She met her end while dancing with Bond; a henchman tried to shoot Bond in the back, but he quickly spun round and the bullet killed Fiona instead.

#15 - Patricia Fearing

|               |                     |
|---------------|---------------------|
| Actrice       | Molly Peters |
| Nationaliteit | English             |
| Film          | Thunderball  |
| Jaar          | 1965                |

Rol

Patricia Fearing was a nurse working at the Shrublands health clinic, where Bond had been sent to detoxify from too many martinis. After nearly being killed by SPECTRE agent Count Lippe, Bond won the sympathy of Patricia, and the two spent the night with a steam room and a mink glove.

#16 - Mademoiselle La Porte

|               |                            |
|---------------|----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Maryse Guy Mitsouko |
| Nationaliteit | French                     |
| Film          | Thunderball         |
| Jaar          | 1965                       |

Rol

Mlle. La Porte was Bond's French liaison during his attendance of SPECTRE agent Jacques Bouvar's funeral. She informs Bond that Bouvar passed away in his sleep, and as the two leave the funeral she ends with "Is there anything else our French station can do for Monsieur Bond?", to which Bond replies, "Later, perhaps."

#17 - Kissy Suzuki

|               |                            |
|---------------|----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Mie Hama            |
| Nationaliteit | Japanese                   |
| Film          | You Only Live Twice |
| Jaar          | 1967                       |

Rol

Kissy Suzuki was a ninja working for the head of the Japanese secret service, Tiger Tanaka. She had a mock wedding with James Bond, who underwent surgery to disguise himself as a Japanese fisherman, so that the pair could explore a quiet village without being noticed.

#18 - Aki

|               |                            |
|---------------|----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Akiko Wakabayashi   |
| Nationaliteit | Japanese                   |
| Film          | You Only Live Twice |
| Jaar          | 1967                       |

Rol

Aki was a senior agent of the Japanese secret service, working directly under its leader Tiger Tanaka. She was confident and independent, and tricked Bond into walking over a trap door, which catapulted him down a steel slide leading to Tanaka's office. She drove a Toyota 2000GT and saved Bond's life on many occasions. Mid way through the film, an assassin tried to poison Bond, but Aki was poisoned by mistake.

#19 - Ling

|               |                            |
|---------------|----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Tsai Chin           |
| Nationaliteit | Chinese                    |
| Film          | You Only Live Twice |
| Jaar          | 1967                       |

Rol

In the opening scenes of the film, Bond is shown in bed with Ling, as the two discuss why Chinese girls taste different from all other girls. Ling gets up and presses a button that rockets the bed upwards into the wall, and two gunmen enter the room to kill Bond. It is later revealed to the audience that Ling was helping to stage Bond's death in order to keep his enemies off his back.

#20 - Helga Brandt

|               |                            |
|---------------|----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Karin Dor           |
| Nationaliteit | German                     |
| Film          | You Only Live Twice |
| Jaar          | 1967                       |

Rol

Helga Brandt was a SPECTRE henchwoman who pretended to fall in love with Bond and switch to his side, only to try and kill him the next morning. For failing to kill Bond, Brandt is killed by head of SPECTRE Blofeld, who drops her into a pool of piranha fish. Helga Brandt was very similar to prior Bond girl Fiona Volpe, as the producers tried to replicate their prior success.

#21 - Teresa di Vincenzo

|               |  |
|---------------|--|
| Actrice       | Diana Rigg                      |
| Nationaliteit | English                                |
| Film          | On Her Majesty's Secret Service |
| Jaar          | 1969                                   |

Rol

Contessa Teresa di Vincenzo was the most important girl in Bond's life, becoming Mrs Tracy Bond by the end of the film. Starting out troubled and suicidal, Tracy was rescued by Bond, who gradually fell in love with her. At their wedding, Bond vowed that they would have all the time in the world together. In a tragic twist of irony, Tracy was assassinated by Ernst Stavro Blofeld as the pair were stopped at a roadside to remove the flowers from their car.

#22 - Ruby Bartlett

|               |  |
|---------------|--|
| Actrice       | Angela Scoular                  |
| Nationaliteit | English                                |
| Film          | On Her Majesty's Secret Service |
| Jaar          | 1969                                   |

Rol

Ruby Bartlett was one of the "angels of death" at Blofeld's swiss clinic. She had been brought there to cure a chicken allergy, but was in fact being hypnotized by Blofeld as part of a plot to spread a crop virus around the country. When she first met Bond, disguised as Sir Hillary Bray, she discreetly wrote her room number in lipstick on his thigh, so that he could meet her later that night.

#23 - Nancy

|               |  |
|---------------|--|
| Actrice       | Catherine Schell                |
| Nationaliteit | Hungarian                              |
| Film          | On Her Majesty's Secret Service |
| Jaar          | 1969                                   |

Rol

After sneaking into Ruby Bartlett's room in the swiss clinic, Bond had returned to his own room. He said to himself in the mirror, "Hilly, you old devil", before noticing that another patient, Nancy, had snook into his room. Being the only man in the clinic, Bond had attracted the fancy of several of the girls.

#24 - Tiffany Case

|               |                             |
|---------------|-----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Jill St. John        |
| Nationaliteit | American                    |
| Film          | Diamonds Are Forever |
| Jaar          | 1971                        |

Rol

Tiffany Case was a diamond smuggler in part of a pipeline of smugglers that ultimately ended at Ernst Stavro Blofeld. Courier Peter Franks was supposed to pass the diamonds to Tiffany, but Bond intercepted and impersonated Franks, and managed to take the diamonds for himself. Bond's involvement saved Tiffany being murdered, and she eventually switched to Bond's allegiance.

#25 - Plenty O'Toole

|               |                             |
|---------------|-----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Lana Wood            |
| Nationaliteit | American                    |
| Film          | Diamonds Are Forever |
| Jaar          | 1971                        |

Rol

Plenty O'Toole was a gold digger from Las Vegas. She helped a man gamble at the craps table, but when he lost all of his money, she lost interest. She turned to leave, but went back after hearing James Bond ask for $10,000 in chips. She helped Bond play craps, and after winning $50,000, she went back to Bond's suite. Bond girl Tiffany Case was waiting there for Bond, and some mobsters threw Plenty out of the window into the pool below.

#26 - Bambi

|               |                             |
|---------------|-----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Lola Larson          |
| Nationaliteit | American                    |
| Film          | Diamonds Are Forever |
| Jaar          | 1971                        |

Rol

Bambi and Thumper were the two gymnastic bodyguards holding Willard Whyte prisoner in his Las Vegas villa. When Bond enters to rescue Whyte, he meets Bambi and Thumper, who introduce themselves, and then take it in turns to attack Bond, somewhat playfully.

#27 - Thumper

|               |                             |
|---------------|-----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Trina Parks          |
| Nationaliteit | American                    |
| Film          | Diamonds Are Forever |
| Jaar          | 1971                        |

Rol

Thumper and Bambi attack Bond, kicking him and using their martial art skills to overcome him. Bond was at a loss, the two girls too nimble for him. However, Thumper and Bambi then throw Bond into a pool, and they lose their advantage, Bond managing to push their heads underwater until they give in and reveal where Willard Whyte is being kept.

#28 - Marie

|               |                             |
|---------------|-----------------------------|
| Actrice       | Denise Perrier       |
| Nationaliteit | French                      |
| Film          | Diamonds Are Forever |
| Jaar          | 1971                        |

Rol

As Bond seeks out Blofeld to get revenge for the death of his wife, the trail leads him from Tokyo to Cairo, where he interrogates a gambler about Blofeld's whereabouts. "Marie... ask.. Marie." Bond finds Marie, who asks "Is there something I can do for you?" Bond replies with "There's something I'd like you to get off your chest", and then removes her Bra and begins to strangle her with it. He gets the information he wants and pursues the lead.

#29 - Solitaire

|               |                         |
|---------------|-------------------------|
| Actrice       | Jane Seymour     |
| Nationaliteit | English                 |
| Film          | Live and Let Die |
| Jaar          | 1973                    |

Rol

Solitaire was a psychic tarot card reader working for heroin baron Dr. Kananga. She predicted the movements of James Bond and other men who posed a threat to their operations. Solitaire was practically imprisoned by Kananga as he knew that, like her mother, she would lose her psychic gift if she were to make love. When first meeting Bond, Solitaire drew the lovers card, predicting the fate of her and Bond. Indeed, Solitaire soon lost her powers, and became a target of Kananga's wrath.

#30 - Rosie Carver

|               |                         |
|---------------|-------------------------|
| Actrice       | Gloria Hendry    |
| Nationaliteit | American                |
| Film          | Live and Let Die |
| Jaar          | 1973                    |

Rol

Rosie Carver was an inept and incompetent double agent, working for the CIA and for heroin baron Dr. Kananga. She checked into Bond's hotel room as Mrs. Bond, and said she would take him to the spot where Bains, another MI6 agent, was killed. While picnicking near the area, Bond confronts Rosie, revealing that he knows she is working for Kananga. Bond threatens to kill her, and Rosie runs away, only to be killed by a hidden gun in one of Kananga's scarecrows.

#31 - Miss Caruso

|               |                         |
|---------------|-------------------------|
| Actrice       | Madeline Smith   |
| Nationaliteit | English                 |
| Film          | Live and Let Die |
| Jaar          | 1973                    |

Rol

Miss Caruso was an agent of the Italian Secret Service. She was asleep with Bond at his home when, just before 6am, the doorbell rang. Bond answered the door to find M, who announced an urgent mission. He also casually mentioned that the Italian's were complaining about their missing agent, Miss Caruso. In a scene lit with humour, Bond continually distracts M to avoid him finding Caruso, with a little help from Miss Money Penny, who had accompanied M.

#32 - Mary Goodnight

| Jaar          | 1999                           |

Rol

Christmas Jones was a nuclear physicist working for an international agency that decommissioned nuclear weapons from the Soviet Union era. After Bond helped her escape from an explosion, Jones helped Bond investigate a bomb travelling along Elektra King's oil pipeline. She discovered that half the plutonium was missing, which helped Bond discover King's intentions in time to stop her. The two spend Christmas together in turkey at the end of the film.

#65 - Elektra King

| Jaar          | 1999                           |

Rol

Elektra King was the daughter of Sir Robert King, a wealthy oil baron. When Elektra was kidnapped by villain Renard, M persuaded Sir Robert not to pay the ransom. Elektra developed Stockholm syndrome because of this, feeling sympathy for Renard and resenting her father. She killed her father and planned to destroy Istanbul in a nuclear explosion so that her inherited oil pipeline would have a monopoly.

#66 - Dr. Molly Warmflash

| Jaar          | 2002                   |

Rol

Peaceful Fountains of Desire was a masseuse working for Mr Chang of the Hong Kong Yacht Club Hotel. Bond arrived and took the presidential suite, and was soon surprised to have a complimentary masseuse knock at the door. Knowing Mr Chang was with Chinese Intelligence, Bond felt down the girl's legs and took her gun. He smashed a nearby mirror to reveal Mr Chang spying on him, and talked to Chang directly instead of having the girl find out information.

#70 - Vesper Lynd

| Jaar          | 2006                 |

Rol

Vesper Lynd worked for Her Majesty's Treasury, and was assigned to manage the funds lent to Bond for his poker game with villain Le Chiffre. She got caught up with a vicious fight between Bond and Steven Obanno, that ended in Obanno's bloody death. Bond found Vesper sitting shivering and fully dressed in the shower, trying to wash away the blood. He comforted her, and the two bonded. When Bond was poisoned by Le Chiffre, Vesper came to Bond's aid and saved his life. Later in the film, the pair were captured, and Vesper spared Bond's life in a series of events that led to the end of her own

#71 - Solange Dimitrios

| Jaar          | 2006                    |

Rol

Solange Dimitrios was the wife of Alex Dimitrios, a villain working for Le Chiffre. She joined Alex at a poker table, but was dismissed for being several hours late, and instead sat bored at the bar. At the end of the evening, her husband's Aston Martin DB5 was brought round by the valet, and she went to get in. However, Bond had won the car in their poker game, and he used his charm to tempt her back to his place for a drink.

#72 - Camille Montes

| Jaar          | 2008                     |

Rol

Camille Montes was a Bolivian agent who's family was murdered by General Medrano. She slept with Medrano's business acquaintance Dominic Greene to try and get close enough to Medrano to enact revenge. The plan failed and she was almost killed, so Camille teamed up with Bond to kill Medrano and Greene.

#73 - Strawberry Fields

| Jaar          | 2008                     |

Rol

Strawberry Fields was an MI6 office worker in Bolivia at the British consulate. She was tasked with ensuring that James Bond flew back home, but she ultimately failed. She spent the night with Bond and went with him to Dominic Greene's fundraiser, helping him escape by tripping one of Green's henchmen. Greene got his revenge by leaving her dead on Bond's bed, covered in oil from head to toe, in a throwback to Jill Masterson from Goldfinger.

#74 - Sévérine

| Jaar          | 2012                    |

Rol

Sévérine was a captive of Raoul Silva's, who had taken her out of the Macau sex trade at a young age. Bond met Sévérine at a casino and convinced her that he could kill Silva and let her go free if she helped him out. After killing her bodyguards, Bond managed to escape the casino and travelled with Sévérine to Silva's private Island. The pair were caught, and for her betrayal, Silva placed a glass of Scotch on Sévérine's head and asked Bond to shoot it off. Bond purposefully missed, but Silva shot her in the head anyway, killing her and knocking off the Scotch. Bond coldly commented that it was a
